MS GOP: Bryant for Gov., Barbour or Huckabee for Pres.

Raleigh, N.C. - Mississippi Lieutenant Governor Phil Bryant is certainly the favorite to get his party's nomination to succeed Haley Barbour at the helm of the state. As last week's PPP release showed, Bryant would also be a shoo-in come November. Bryant has almost two-thirds (63\%) of Republican primary voters' support, with only one other candidate, businessman Dave Dennis, in double digits (14\%). Retired General Hudson Holliday gets a mere 2\%, with perennial candidate James Broadwater at only $1 \%$ and businessman Ron Williams with almost no support. 20\% are undecided, but unless a seismic shift occurs, that will not impact Bryant's chances in the primary only four months away.

If Barbour makes a bid for the White House, he would have home-state support. His $37 \%$ in an eight-candidate field puts him at almost a 2:1 advantage over the next contender, neighboring Arkansas’ Mike Huckabee, who earns 19\%. Newt Gingrich and Sarah Palin each get $10 \%$, with Mitt Romney back at $6 \%$, Michele Bachmann at 5\%, Tim Pawlenty at $3 \%$, and Ron Paul at $2 \%$, with $9 \%$ undecided or preferring someone else.

Without Barbour in the race, Huckabee gets most of Barbour's supporters, jumping up to $35 \%$, followed by Palin's $20 \%$, Gingrich's $18 \%$, and Romney still way behind at $8 \%$, and the others pretty much running in place. Romney has typically done poorly in Southernstate primary matchups in recent PPP polls, but this is his worst performance yet.

46\% of these hardcore Republican voters believe interracial marriage should be illegal, while $40 \%$ think it should be legal. With Barbour included, Huckabee gets more support (22\%) from the former than the latter (15\%), as does Palin (13-6). The support for Bachmann (10-2), Gingrich (13-8), and Pawlenty (4-1) works the opposite way.

Voters are very satisfied with their junior Senator Roger Wicker. 72\% see his views as being "about right." But as is the case in many states, PPP finds that if given a choice between even the most strident right-winger and a generic "more conservative challenger" in the primary, voters would prefer or nearly favor the latter. Here, voters are split, 40-39 in favor of Wicker. His bid for renomination will likely be uncontested, but this is an interesting gauge of voters' mood.

PPP surveyed 400 usual Mississippi Republican primary voters from March $24^{\text {th }}$ to $27^{\text {th }}$. The survey's margin of error is $+/-4.9 \%$. Other factors, such as refusal to be interviewed and weighting, may introduce additional error that is more difficult to quantify.
